Professional License Verification

Screening. Monitoring. Alerting.

In your job, efficiency is critical

The saying, “time is money” is particularly relevant to anyone working in the mortgage industry. It’s frustrating to lose valuable selling and customer relations time to review credentials and perform due diligence licensing checks on third party originators (TPOs). But a quality licensing verification program is necessary for the integrity, reputation and security of your business. There’s an automated online solution that is fast, easy and thorough.

Fast online access to professional license information

Mortgage Industry Data Exchange (MIDEX®) Professional License Verification gives you instant online access to detailed, real-time licensing information. Our proprietary database collects information from more than 60 federal and state mortgage, appraisal and real estate regulators to give you information about industry professionals at the individual and company levels.

Automated front-end credentials and licensing authentication

Front-end TPO license verifications are automated with the ability to access as few or as many sources as you need. Search one name at a time or in batch mode. Data can be returned in PDF or XML file formats.

Data generally include:

- Company or individual name
- Address
- Branch locations
- License number
- Type and status
- License expiration dates

Manage ongoing risk with professional license monitoring

The initial review of professional licenses provides key insight, but only up to a point in time. MIDEX Continuous Monitoring service helps to manage and mitigate ongoing risk, as well as eliminate the laborious and costly efforts of constantly manually verifying information about the professionals with whom you conduct business.

Our Continuous Monitoring allows you to proactively manage potential risk associated with your business relationships. Regardless of whether you search for one license or several through batch mode, the information is automatically stored so that we can begin monitoring the license for any changes in status.

A trusted name—a proven track record

Since 1990, Mortgage Asset Research Institute (MARI®), a LexisNexis® Service, has grown to become a recognized leader and premier provider of information about mortgage professionals and companies and essential risk management solutions. MARI developed the Mortgage Industry Data Exchange (MIDEX®) as a powerful tool used to help subscribers defend against mortgage fraud and the perpetrators of fraudulent schemes.
